Don’t follow a path, leave your own trail...
Children are often faced with challenges. They sometimes follow a path that has been already made because it seems easy, much easier than leaving their own trail!

We need to guide them through difficulties faced in the classroom and nurture those special moments of learning that shape their understanding of the English language.
English Trails

English Trails is an innovative course in American English which systematically develops learners’ skills and competencies. It follows the modular approach and is organised into six modules.

Don’t follow a path, leave your own trail...

Screenshot from English Trails 2a, Interactive Whiteboard Material (html5)
We're planning to plant more than my brother's. What about you? Organize a clean-up day. Friends or other people and clean up an area in the city. Collect litter from the streets, parks, etc. Don't forget to put bottles, paper and cans into recycling bins. Plant trees. We're planning to plant more than 1,000 trees in Downsview Park. Come and help make the park greener than last year. Everyone is welcome. Family and learn all about nature.

Every year on April 22 and all over Canada, people celebrate Earth Day. Different activities take place on that day and during the week that follows. It's a time to celebrate the environment, learn about the city's problems and do something to help. More than six million Canadians take part in Earth Day and more and more people are joining us every year. What about you? Organize a clean-up day. Friends or other people and clean up an area in the city. Collect litter from the streets, parks, etc. Don't forget to put bottles, paper and cans into recycling bins. Plant trees. We're planning to plant more than 1,000 trees in Downsview Park. Come and help make the park greener than last year. Everyone is welcome. Family and learn all about nature. Build a birdhouse, for example. It isn't as difficult as you may think.

One Sunday morning Arthur and Christine decided to go for a walk in the forest. It was the beginning of spring and it was quite warm and sunny.

The children ran for help and soon a helicopter arrived to take the man to hospital. He was the owner of the parrot. He asked the children to look after the parrot while he was in hospital. Arthur and Christine were delighted.

Debbie got up early on that sunny Saturday morning. She had arranged to go on a picnic to Green Park with her friends and she was very excited about it.

As soon as she was ready, she got on her bike and headed for the park which was on the other side of the town. Suddenly, she heard sirens. The sound of the sirens was getting closer and louder. Debbie looked behind her to see what was happening, but she looked too late as she saw a car coming toward her. She tried to get off her bike, but she was too late. The car ran over her bike. Luckily, Debbie wasn’t hurt, but when the car had stopped, two men got out and started running.

Just then, a police car stopped next to the same car and three police officers got out and started chasing the two men. One of the officers shouted, “Stop the thieves!”

Some time later, a police officer offered Debbie a reward. She was the heroine of the day because, in a way, she had helped them catch the thieves.

we spent several days rowing down the river. On occasions we had to carry our canoes through the woods to avoid the dangerous rapids. One afternoon, we heard the sound of drums beating in the distance.

"What is that?" I asked.

"War drums," replied Lord John. "I’ve heard them before."

"Yes," said Gomez. "They’re war drums... The Indians are watching us; they’ll kill us if they can."

I turned to look at the dark green trees that surrounded us, imagining the eyes of the Indians upon us. The river was as still as glass and emerald in colour, and as we moved slowly along it, our paddles sent a thousand ripples across its shiny surface. Eventually, the sound of the drums faded away. "No Indians here," said Gomez. "They’re afraid of Curupuri!"

"That’s the evil spirit of the cliffs," explained Lord John.

I nodded, remembering my first conversation with Professor Challenger.

In time, the river became too shallow to navigate, so we hid our canoes in the bushes and continued the rest of our journey on foot. We filled our backpacks with guns, ammunition, blankets, food and other provisions, and made our way north. Two days later, we arrived at an open plain – the red cliffs were clearly visible in the distance.

"There are the cliffs!" I said.

"Don’t go too close!" said Professor Challenger, smiling and saying nothing. As we approached the cliffs, we saw trees and bushes on the summit, but no other signs of life. Exhausted from our journey, we set up camp at the foot of the cliffs, and went to sleep.

The next morning, we discussed how we were going to climb to the plateau at the top of the cliffs. "This side is too steep to climb," said Challenger, peering up at the cliffs. "We need to walk around the cliffs and look for a way up."

The ground at the foot of the cliffs was rocky and broken, and the going was slow and difficult. At around midday, we made a surprising discovery: an old, abandoned campsite. We found empty meat tins and bottles and a newspaper, the Chicago Democrat.
