Sending out an SOS

Did you know?

People have used SOS as a visual distress signal by lighting signal flares to show the location of the ship or flying a signal flag to help other ships hear you. These are still used today in many cases.

In addition, firing a gun repeatedly were also ways of making other ships aware that help was needed. Lighting signal flares to show the location of the ship or flying a signal flag were ways to signal for help.

When the Titanic hit an iceberg in 1912 and started sinking, two of the crew members used radio communication to ask for help. They also tried sending an SOS message to a nearby ship, the Californian. Unfortunately, the crew of the Californian didn't understand the SOS.

Some people believe that SOS stands for “Save Our Ship” or “Save Our Souls,” but that's not the case. People have used SOS as a signal for “Save Our Ship” since the 1900s (in 1905). It became an international distress signal in 1908. One Sunday morning, Arthur and Christine decided to go for a walk in the forest. It was the beginning of spring and it was quite warm and sunny. As they walked through the forest, they saw a large parrot. It said, “Follow me! Follow me!” The children got excited and decided to follow the parrot. After a while, they came to a narrow bridge. The children were frightened but continued to follow the parrot. Just then, they heard someone calling for help. They looked around and saw a man at the edge of the cliff. He was lying down because he had fallen and broken his leg. The children ran for help and soon a helicopter arrived to take the man to hospital. He was the owner of the parrot. He asked the children to look after the parrot while he was in hospital. Arthur and Christine were delighted.

Debbie got up early on that sunny Saturday morning. She had arranged to go on a picnic to Green Park with her friends and she was very excited about it. As soon as she was ready, she got on her bike and headed for the park which was on the other side of the town. Suddenly, as she was riding through the town centre, she heard sirens. The sound of the sirens was getting closer and closer, but Debbie looked behind her to see what was happening. As a result, she lost control of her bike and fell off. Her bike ended up in the middle of the road. Luckily, Debbie wasn’t hurt, but a car ran over her bike. Soon after the car had stopped, two men got out and started running. Just then, a police car stopped next to the same car and three police officers got out and started chasing the two men. One of the officers shouted, “Stop the thieves!” Some time later, finally, a police officer offered Debbie a reward. She was the heroine of the day because, however, in a way, she had helped them catch the thieves.

Writing tips

Focus on readability
1. Students are highlighted to underline their meaning of the sentence
2. Pronouns
3. Vocabulary
4. Punctuation
5. Text structure
6. Use of connectives

When writing an essay in which you are asked to focus on the advantages and disadvantages of an issue, follow the general plan below:

I Opening paragraph
- Introduce the issue to be discussed, referring to the ways in which it is controversial.
- State your opinion.

II Main part
- Discuss one point of view in one paragraph and the opposing in another.
- Provide examples, explaining it or expanding on it.

III Closing paragraph
- Summarize the pros and cons and state your opinion if it is required. Make relevant suggestions or recommendations if appropriate.
- Do you agree with this statement? Give reasons to support your answer.

Which medium (TV, the press, etc.) do you think plays the greatest role in forming public opinion?

The media is in the enviable position of being able to reach millions of people at one time. They can therefore bombard us with stories and images and present us with news items that are deliberately slanted in a particular direction. The media are aware of the fact that they are the singularly most powerful group in society and their power is likely to remain unchecked for some time to come.

The media are not just a means of informing the public today; it also plays a major role in advancing or destroying one’s reputation. In the past, the media’s power was limited to its role of informing the public about events that occurred in the past. In recent years, the media’s power has been enhanced by the Internet. Almost every day, information about people’s private lives is brought to light through the media. The media are powerful beyond imagination.

A lot of people believe that the media should be kept under strict control because they are aware of the fact that the media can be used to advance or destroy a person’s reputation. In fact, the excesses of the media, especially the excesses of tabloid journalism, are becoming a problem.

Many people have been forced to resign from their jobs as a result of being pilloried by the media. People’s lives have been made miserable by the media invading their privacy and bringing to light all the sordid aspects of their private lives. People’s minds are quite impressionable.

What is more, if the media decide to turn on a person, there is very little that person can do to fight back. The media are aware of the fact that they are the singularly most powerful group in society and their power is likely to remain unchecked for some time to come.

People’s lives have been made miserable by the media invading their privacy and bringing to light all the sordid aspects of their private lives. People’s minds are quite impressionable.

The mass media play a crucial role in influencing public opinion. How instrumental are the mass media in influencing public opinion?

Discuss the topic again and answer the following questions:

a. How instrumental are the mass media in influencing public opinion?

b. Why do you think the media can be instrumental in shaping public opinion?

c. What media are most powerful in shaping public opinion?

CHAPTER 2

W e spent several days running down the river; on two occasions we had to carry our canoes through the woods to avoid the dangerous rapids. One afternoon, we heard the sound of drums beating in the distance.

‘What is that?’ I asked.

‘War drums,’ replied Lord John. ‘I’ve heard them before.’

‘Yes,’ said Gomez. ‘They’re war drums… The Indians are watching us; they’ll kill us if they can.’

I turned to look at the dark green trees that surrounded us, imagining the eyes of the Indians upon us. The river was as still as glass and emerald in colour, and as we moved slowly along it, our paddles sent a thousand ripples across its shiny surface. Eventually, the sound of the drums faded away.

‘No Indians here,’ said Gomez. ‘They’re afraid of Curupari.’

‘That’s the evil spirit of the cliffs,’ explained Lord John.

I nodded, remembering my first conversation with Professor Challenger.

In time, the river became too shallow to navigate, so we hid our canoes in the bushes and continued the rest of our journey on foot. We filled our backpacks with guns, ammunition, blankets, food and other provisions, and made our way north. Two days later, we arrived at an open plain – the red cliffs were clearly visible in the distance.

‘There are the cliffs!’ I said.

Professor Challenger smiled and said nothing. As we approached the cliffs, we saw trees and bushes on the summit, but no other signs of life. Exhausted from our journey, we set up camp at the foot of the cliffs, and went to sleep.

The next morning, we discussed how we were going to climb to the plateau at the top of the cliffs. ‘This side is too steep to climb,’ said Challenger, peering up at the cliffs. ‘We need to walk around the cliffs and look for a way up.’

The ground at the foot of the cliffs was rocky and broken, and the going was slow and difficult. At around midday, we made a surprising discovery: an old, abandoned campsite. We found empty meat tins and bottles and a newspaper, the Chicago Democrat.

Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR)

One of the aims of the Common European Framework (CEFR) is to describe the levels of proficiency required by existing standards, tests and examinations in order to facilitate comparisons between different systems of qualifications. For this purpose the CEFR Levels have been developed. The table below summarises the set of proposed CEFR Levels in single holistic paragraphs and provides teachers and curriculum planners with orientation points.

CEFR LEVELS: Global Scale

</tr>
<tr>

</tr>
<tr>
<td>B1</td>
<td>Can understand the main points of clear standard input on familiar matters regularly encountered in work, school, leisure, etc. Can deal with most situations likely to arise whilst travelling in an area where the language is spoken. Can produce simple connected text on topics which are familiar or of personal interest. Can describe experiences and events, dreams, hopes and ambitions and briefly give reasons and explanations for opinions and plans.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A2</td>
<td>Can understand sentences and frequently used expressions related to areas of most immediate relevance (e.g. very basic personal and family information, shopping, local geography, employment). Can communicate in simple and routine tasks requiring a simple and direct exchange of information on familiar and routine matters. Can describe in simple terms aspects of his/her background, immediate environment and matters in areas of immediate need.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A1</td>
<td>Can understand and use familiar everyday expressions and very basic phrases aimed at the satisfaction of needs of a concrete type. Can introduce himself/herself and others and can ask and answer questions about personal details such as where he/she lives, people he/she knows and things he/she has. Can interact in a simple way provided the other person talks slowly and clearly and is prepared to help.</td>
